

Joseph Walter was born December 25, 1888. He was a rancher during his early life and later a gardener in California. He never married. He was an accomplished musician, particularly on the violin and viola. He was in the U. S. army band in World War I and later organized a dance band which became popular in Wosatch and surrounding counties. He was killed on the highway close to his home at Mesquite, California, on November 30, 1955. He was buried at Heber.